

JOURNALS
OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY
OF THE PROVINCE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

SESSION 2003

Tuesday, February 11, 2003

TWO O'CLOCK P.M.

Prayers by the Rabbi Harry Brechner of the Congregation Emanu-El.

This being the first day of the fourth meeting of the Thirty-seventh Parliament of the Province of British Columbia for the dispatch of business, pursuant to a Proclamation of the Honourable IONA V. CAMPAGNOLO, Lieutenant Governor of the Province, dated the 29th day of January, 2003.

The Honourable IONA V. CAMPAGNOLO, Lieutenant Governor of the Province, having entered the House, took her seat on the Throne, and was pleased to deliver the following gracious Speech:

Mr. Speaker, Honourable Members of the Legislature:

I join you again, when as legislators you look to the future of our great province and the future of all its people through this Speech from the Throne.

Since this Assembly last convened, several honoured British Columbians have passed away, and we pay tribute to them today. They include Vancouver lawyer Peter Butler, forestry consultant and entrepreneur Charles Widman, Provincial Court Judge William Ostler and Haida artist Freda Diesing.

We also note the passing of one of our country's admired former Governors General, Ramon Hnatyshyn and one of the most honoured citizens of this province, Brigadier General, The Honourable Henry Bell-Irving who served British Columbia both as a soldier and a citizen and was a distinguished Lieutenant Governor from 1978 to 1983.

All these citizens and many more that we have lost since we last met have added much to the life of this province and are sorely missed.

On behalf of all Members, I also send the good wishes of this Assembly and the people of B.C. to former Premier Mike Harcourt for a continued positive recovery from his recent and terrible accident.

A lot has happened over the past year, as the world has struggled to recover from the devastating after-effects of September 11, 2001.

We live in trying, uncertain times of great global change.

New solutions are required to cope with the generational challenges that all provinces are facing in health care, education, and other vital social program areas.

New approaches are needed to refocus public resources where they are needed most — on people: patients, students and those most vulnerable in our society.

Significant change is needed to make our economy more competitive and to build a stronger foundation for prosperity for every family, in every region of our province.

Reforms are required to make our government institutions and services more responsive and accountable to the people they serve.

Yet with the need for change and modernization come exciting new worlds of opportunity. These are times of renewal, hope and accomplishment. They are times of discovery, achievement and unlimited possibility.

No place on Earth is blessed with more potential than British Columbia.

In the heartlands of British Columbia, from one community to the next, the optimism of the people burns bright, as it has throughout our history.

It is that indefatigable sense of confidence and community spirit that has always been the hallmark of British Columbia. In these times, as in those long past, it is the strength and imaginations of British Columbians that carries us to a brighter future.

We still have a long way to go, and there are challenges yet ahead. But we are moving forward, farther, faster than anyone thought possible.

The world will open up for us as we open up our province to all British Columbians and to the world. That is our central strategic imperative. It is the mission to open up British Columbia to the wealth of opportunities that lie in wait of our discovery.

We must open up our minds to new ways of meeting our common interests. We must open up our province to new partnerships with First Nations, other governments and private enterprise.

This is the government's overriding vision: to open up every region and every community to new horizons of hope. To open up every sector of our economy to new opportunities, wherever they exist. To open up the free flow of people, goods and services within our province and with our trading partners. To open up every region of B.C. to visitors from around the globe through a successful 2010 Olympic bid.

There is no place on Earth that has more to offer the world than British Columbia.

With all we have to work with as a province — our wealth of talent, our rich natural resources, and our tremendous competitive advantages — there is no dream we can't realize if we really want to make it happen.

Opening Up Our Democratic Institutions

Today across the country Canadians have lost some of their confidence in their public institutions.

They are skeptical about government's ability to meet their needs and meet the challenges of our rapidly changing world.

Your government is acting to change that. It has worked to open up our public institutions to the people of the province through a number of reforms that are in some cases without precedent in Canada or the Commonwealth.

These include free votes, active legislative committees, new Government Caucus Committees, televised open Cabinet meetings, and a set date for provincial general elections.

There are now three-year rolling service plans, with performance targets that Ministers must meet to earn their full pay, and an independent Progress Board to report on how well our province is doing.

All of these measures have made the government more open, accessible and accountable to British Columbians.

The government's initiative to create Canada's first Provincial Congress reflects the growing understanding among all Canadians that all elected officials serve the same citizens.

Provincial Dialogues on Health and Education have reinforced the government's prime commitment to improve health and education, as well as its dedication to new ideas, to learn from one another and to bring British Columbians together in search of new solutions to their common challenges.

We can open up new worlds of possibility if we have access to the information and facts needed to make informed decisions.

New efforts will be made to ensure that British Columbians do have the information they need to understand the challenges their government faces and to assess the decisions it is making on their behalf.

Additional resources will be committed to foster informed public debate of the facts and choices at hand, and understanding of the opportunities and solutions the government is pursuing in the public interest.

The government will do more this year to bring citizens together in search of new ideas for constructive change.

A Dialogue on Crime will bring together community leaders, MLAs, law enforcement experts and others in pursuit of better ways to prevent and combat crime in our schools and on our streets.

In the interim, legislation will be introduced this Session to help our police better manage and track information on criminals, suspects and sentencing conditions imposed by the courts.

This new high-tech computer-based system will enhance public safety, and will be provided to police across British Columbia.

A Seniors and Youth Congress will also be organized to examine the challenges facing our province from the perspective of both the younger generation and seniors.

The government wants to build a bridge between the generations where the enthusiasm and new ideas of youth are tempered by the wisdom of experience.

Moreover, this year your government will put the drafting pen in the hands of the people to shape the future of our parliamentary democracy in the 21st century.

A Citizens' Assembly will examine and make recommendations on the crucial issue of electoral reform.

British Columbians will have an unprecedented opportunity to review and debate all models available throughout the world for electing their MLAs, consistent with our system of responsible government.

And if the Assembly ultimately determines that there is a better model than the current system, that model will be put directly to the people in a referendum to amend our provincial constitution on May 17, 2005.

A motion will be introduced in this Assembly within the next few weeks to initiate this process, following the release of the report on this issue that was so ably completed by the respected Gordon Gibson.

To open up the future, we must have the confidence to challenge the status quo and build upon the values of British Columbians. We must embark upon a bold, exciting, new course: one that ventures to dare and dream and do whatever might be done to make B.C. the best it can be.

Opening Up New Worlds of Possibility

Education is the key to opening up new worlds of possibility, and along with health care, it is your government's highest social priority.

This year, the government will build on the major reforms introduced in education last year. New measures will be taken to improve graduation requirements and ensure graduates have the skills they need in life after school.

Amendments will be introduced to the Teaching Profession Act that will enhance accountability and administrative efficiency, while clarifying the role of the British Columbia College of Teachers.

New steps will be taken to encourage student involvement in education planning in schools. New Web-based informational tools will help parents foster student achievement and improve literacy and numeracy skills.

Similarly, improvements will be made to advanced education.

Our universities remain a source of provincial pride and educational excellence. The government will continue to help liberate the expertise and potential that exists within our universities, to ensure they remain engines of knowledge generation and discovery.

It will continue to pursue new partnerships through initiatives like the Leading Edge Endowment Fund, Genome BC and the B.C. Life Sciences Initiative that will build on the nearly $700 million the government has committed to advance research and foster innovation in British Columbia.

Your government is excited by the contributions that are made by B.C.'s exceptional colleges and institutes throughout the province.

This year the government will initiate a new research partnership aimed at providing new resources for applied economic and social research that takes place in our colleges. The new B.C. Regional Innovation Chairs will be seed-funded by a $7.5 million one-time grant from the government. The chairs will be administered by the Leading Edge Endowment Fund.

The legislative committee on education will focus its attention on B.C.'s institutes and colleges to determine what can be done to build on their accomplishments.

The new BC Campus on-line learning model will be advanced to significantly increase access to post-secondary education. A new Private Career Training Institutions Act will be introduced to guide career-related private training, and to ensure tuition protection for students.

A new model for industry training in trades and technical sectors will be implemented to address skills shortages and increase training and apprenticeships.

All of these initiatives will help open up new worlds of learning for British Columbians.

New Hope for Sustainable, Accessible Health Care

No area of government is in more dire need of reform than health care. We must find new ways of controlling rising health costs, while also increasing access to services, drugs, technology and highly skilled health professionals.

Despite the $1.1 billion increase that the government has directed to health care, it is still not enough to keep pace with British Columbians' growing demands, an aging population and rising expectations for ever bigger, better, and more expensive health care services.

Over the past decade Pharmacare costs have jumped by 147 per cent and are now projected to grow by almost 500 per cent over the next two decades. Over the past ten years, we've seen the cost of health care grow from 34 per cent of all expenditures to 41 per cent today.

This growth in health spending is increasingly squeezing out the money available in the budget for other vital social services. Clearly this trend cannot continue.

New solutions are needed. New approaches are required. New cooperative relationships and cost containment strategies are essential.

The additional federal funding negotiated at last week's First Ministers' Conference will help. But it will not in itself solve our sustainability problem, or adequately offset the cost pressures of current health services and health reform.

The Province's vision for health care, the Picture of Health, clearly outlines many reforms that will also help meet the challenges at hand.

More steps will be taken this year to act on that vision.

The Action Schools project represents only one of several initiatives that will be taken to promote health prevention and wellness.

The new 24/7 BC NurseLine, the BC HealthGuide, the Aboriginal Companion handbook, and new programs aimed at early childhood development will all help promote health and wellness for all B.C. families.

Later this year, the government will initiate a new strategy for Chronic Disease Management. New measures will be taken to strengthen British Columbia's Ambulance Service.

Your government will continue to pursue new independent living options for seniors, to improve their quality of life and to reduce pressure on long-term care facilities.

A new Fair PharmaCare Plan will be introduced later this month that will significantly benefit most British Columbians living on fixed and lower incomes.

Some 280,000 low-income families will pay less than they do now. For the first time young families with lower incomes will be supported in their drug costs through the Fair PharmaCare Plan.

The new Fair PharmaCare Plan will end the existing inequities whereby higher income earners sometimes pay less for their drug costs than those with much lower incomes. Yet it will ensure that the vast majority of B.C. families will pay the same or less for their prescription drug costs than they do today.

All of these measures will help put health care on a solid and sustainable footing for the future.

Opening Up

New Ways of Meeting Our Common Interests

Your government will continue to open up new ways of meeting our citizens' common interests.

New steps will be taken this year to improve choice and access to childcare services, as all services are consolidated under the Ministry of Community, Aboriginal and Women's Services.

The new funding model announced last December will increase the number of government-funded childcare spaces by over 50 per cent, from 45,000 to 70,000. More than 1,400 licensed family and group childcare providers will be eligible for government assistance for the first time.

The government will also introduce legislation to open up a new provincial authority called Community Living BC to oversee the design and delivery of services to people with developmental disabilities.

As the government continues with employment assistance reforms aimed at fostering greater independence and self-sufficiency, funding will continue to be focused on those who need it most.

Funding for employment programs for people with disabilities was increased by 40 per cent this past fiscal year, and in the new year those with disabilities will see their earnings exemptions rise again.

The changes the government has made have not been easy or without controversy. But they are working. Today there are 55,000 fewer British Columbians dependent on income assistance than there were when this government came to office.

Exit surveys show that 92 per cent of those leaving income assistance have done so for employment, educational opportunities or because they have other sources of income. The majority — 66 per cent — found paid employment and are generally earning two or three times more than they were on welfare.

Opening Up

Recognition and Reconciliation with First Nations

If history has taught us anything, surely it is this: we are always stronger as a country and as a province when we work together.

We are enhanced as a people when we celebrate our diversity and build on all we have in common. We are enriched when we listen to one another and learn from our mistakes.

Nowhere is that truer than with governments' relations with First Nations. For too long we have been stuck in a rut of our own making, talking past each other and heading in opposite directions.

There is no mileage in the status quo. To make progress, we must all find a new path forward together. We must move beyond the old approaches and flawed policies of the past.

It is up to us to accord First Nations the respect, support and social and economic opportunities to which they are entitled.

Errors have been made in the past. Our institutions have failed Aboriginal people across our province.

Your government deeply regrets the mistakes that were made by governments of every political stripe over the course of our province's history.

It regrets the tragic experiences visited upon First Nations through years of paternalistic policies that fostered inequity, intolerance, isolation and indifference.

Inadequate education, health care and housing; rampant unemployment; alcoholism and drug abuse; unconscionably high rates of physical and sexual abuse, incarceration, infant mortality and suicide: these are the hallmarks of despair that have disproportionately afflicted First Nations' families, on and off-reserve.

These are the legacies of history that we must act to erase. They are sad reminders that it is always our children who pay the biggest price for society's shortcomings.

No words of regret can ever undo the damage that has been done to First Nations in all the years we have shared this land together. Nor are governments solely responsible for all of the misfortunes endured by First Nations at the cruel hand of history.

The point of reflecting on the errors made is not to assign blame or bear guilt for the actions of our forefathers. Rather, it is to assume today's responsibility to heal the wounds that time has wrought.

It is to offer our hand in a new partnership of optimism and hope, as one people of many peoples, in pursuit of common goals.

The place to meet is at the negotiating tables, not in the courts or on opposite sides of new barriers to understanding.

Your government will prove this year that it is serious about negotiating workable, affordable treaties that will provide certainty, finality and equality. It will take bold new steps to advance issues that are common to most treaty tables, such as governance, certainty, and access to fish.

Agreements-in-principle are within reach. With goodwill and mutual commitment we can break new ground and lead by example.

Progress is not just being made in treaty talks. First Nations leaders have worked closely with the government to create social and economic opportunities for their communities throughout B.C.

Your government is determined to provide a new level of economic opportunity for First Nations communities and people.

A three-year, $30 million Economic Measures Fund has been established to help First Nations pursue new economic opportunities now. That Fund will be indefinitely extended with an additional $10 million per year.

Funding has been approved to support Aboriginal involvement in oil and gas, tourism, forestry, fish aquaculture and the Olympic bid.

Your government is working to expand First Nations' involvement in the co-management of parks and recreational services.

A formal new partnership with Aboriginal leaders is leading the country in Aboriginal child protection and family development.

Funding has been enhanced for Aboriginal post-secondary programs, early childhood development, childcare services and programs to protect and promote Aboriginal languages. The First Citizens' Fund is being doubled, from $36 million to $72 million.

All of these initiatives will help, but more must be done. The treaty process will not be completed overnight — it will take time. Interim measures will help, but it must be remembered that a third of First Nations have opted not to participate in the treaty process.

Regardless, the courts have been very clear that the Crown always has a legal duty to consult and accommodate First Nations where their rights may be affected. Your government will do more over the next years to meet that obligation.

It will work with First Nations and others to explore ways of building upon the Provincial Policy for Consultation with First Nations, in furtherance of the New Era goal of developing a legislative framework for respecting Aboriginal rights in the absence of treaties.

Efforts to renew forestry, to develop energy, to build tourism, to restore mining, to revitalize the fishery, to expand agriculture, to improve health care delivery and educational prospects, all create new opportunities for British Columbians that must include First Nations.

Clearly, new partnerships are required to promote greater equity and certainty for all concerned — Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal alike.

Achieving those partnerships will require new commitments to cooperative approaches on everyone's part, especially in our forest and fishing industries.

Significant reforms will be introduced this year to ensure that more access to logging and forest opportunities is available to First Nations.

Your government will take another bold step to forge a new era of reconciliation with First Nations. Starting this year, funding will be earmarked in the budget for revenue sharing arrangements with First Nations that wish to help revitalize the forest industry in their traditional territories.

The distribution of that revenue will be negotiated with First Nations in exchange for legal certainty that allows all regions and all British Columbians to more fairly prosper from their resource industries.

The future will be forged in partnership with First Nations — not in denial of their history, heritage and culture. It will be won in recognition of First Nations' constitutional rights and title — not lost for another generation because we failed to act.

It will be earned through reconciliation and mutual respect. It will be built with bold new approaches that will materially improve First Nations' quality of life — before and after treaties are concluded.

Opening Up The Canada — British Columbia Partnership

As your government acts to create a new generation of understanding and collaboration with First Nations, it recognizes the federal government must also play a crucial role.

The Province is striving to create a new Canada-British Columbia Partnership that meets the needs of all our citizens and includes everyone in the promise of Canada.

British Columbians want their provincial and federal governments to work together on their behalf, not in isolation or opposition to one another. B.C. taxpayers also want to see a fairer share of their federal tax contributions being reinvested in their province.

Your government is pleased with the federal government's growing appreciation of this fact. Over the past year, significant commitments have been made in partnership with British Columbia.

The Province is working in partnership with the federal government on the 2010 Olympic bid; the new Vancouver Trade & Convention Centre; the new Gulf Islands National Park; the softwood lumber dispute; the pine beetle infestation; and cross-border initiatives.

The governments have joined together to build important new infrastructure, and a strong new partnership.

British Columbia's new Life Sciences Initiative is one such example. It has the potential to provide support for cutting edge research in life sciences critical to our traditional resource industries and to our future.

New knowledge, new technologies and applied applications will create a new wave of economic opportunity for entrepreneurial scientists and small businesses across B.C.

Working with the federal government we are confident we can close the digital divide that separates many Aboriginal and rural British Columbians from the world of information, opportunity and benefits that flow from broad band access.

Another area where the Province is working in partnership with the federal government is in transportation. Improvements to highways and border crossings have already begun. But more is needed, starting with critical improvements to the Trans-Canada Highway.

That is your government's top priority for funding under the new Canada-British Columbia Partnership. We need to open up Canada's gateway to British Columbia through the Kicking Horse Canyon of the Trans-Canada Highway.

Your government will pursue that goal and other priorities to meet British Columbians' transportation needs under the new Canada-B.C. Partnership.

As well, the government is working with the federal government to harmonize environmental assessment policies and to improve fisheries management.

This year the government is hoping to enter into a new, multi-year national agriculture policy to improve food safety, quality, and environmental sustainability.

It will also explore the potential for a new national park in the Okanagan, as well as new marine parks to protect some of our most valuable marine ecosystems.

There is so much that can be achieved for our province and our country when we build them both together. This is the promise of Confederation.

Opening Up New Partnerships with Local Governments

Your government will also open up new partnerships with local governments. A new Community Charter will shortly be introduced to give local governments greater autonomy, new planning tools, and new sources of revenue.

New partnerships will be opened up with the private sector. Partnerships BC will aggressively pursue public-private partnerships that will improve customer services, maximize private sector investment and minimize costs to taxpayers.

While public-private partnerships are already underway with a new ambulatory care centre in Vancouver and the new Fraser Valley Health Centre, new public-private partnerships will be actively sought this year in transportation, health care, information technology, housing, and land and resource development.

Opening Up British Columbia to the World

There can be no better way to open up our province to the world than by hosting the 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Games in Vancouver and Whistler.

No money could ever buy the exposure that event would give our province over the next decade and beyond.

What better way to invite the world to visit our province and build our tourism industry? What better way to turbo-charge our economy and create lasting legacies of achievement? What better way to celebrate our multicultural heritage as Canadians?

All of Canada is counting on us to win that bid. Cities across the nation forfeited their own chance to host the Olympics so that we might win the bid for all Canadians.

And now we are approaching the finish line with only two other cities vying for the honour of standing in the spotlight.

The Olympics are about much more than tourism or sport. They are about reaching for the best in all of us.

It is the light of competition, dedication, commitment, discipline and excellence that shines from the Olympic flame. It is the light of humanity and international unity. It is the light in a young person's eye as she dreams of standing on the podium, singing our National Anthem.

The Olympics are all about showing ourselves and all the world just how much we can do and how great we can be in every respect — as individuals, communities, British Columbians and Canadians.

They are about giving our country and our province a chance to shine... a chance to achieve more than we ever thought possible.

The economic benefits of hosting the Olympics are undeniable. They will attract billions of dollars in new investment and economic activity into our province and create thousands of new jobs.

Independent studies have confirmed what former Olympic hosts from Calgary, to Sydney, to Salt Lake City have all told us — the Olympics will generate far more in jobs and economic activity than their cost. Ask Lake Placid, Albertville, Lillehammer or Seoul. They all agree it was the best thing they ever did.

Should we be successful this July, we will gain a once-in-a-lifetime chance to showcase our province to some two billion viewers worldwide. We will gain the right to build upon the 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Games for years before and after that magnificent event.

What a legacy it would leave to our children. What an opportunity it would afford our tourism industry and communities throughout our province. What a way it would be to put our province, our athletes and our nation front and centre on the world stage.

The decision will be made on July 2nd.

Opening Up Our Transportation Infrastructure

The key to building our province has always been to open it up — to open up B.C. to new opportunities for growth and prosperity wherever they exist.

To open up our gateways to all of Canada and the world... To open up our provincial lands and resources to wealth creation... To open up every region to better transportation infrastructure and freer movement of goods, services and people.

Your government has a vision for transportation to do just that.

In rural B.C. there are roads that you cannot drive on because they are in such bad shape. Resource industries face increasing costs and complications because our transportation system does not meet their needs.

Cities and suburbs are choked by traffic and are in desperate need of public transit. Coastal communities need improved ferry service to meet not just their economic needs but their social needs as well.

Goods must flow freely to our customers on the continent and around the world if our economy is to prosper. Ports need to be opened to new levels of access and our airports need to be recognized as critical social and economic infrastructure.

When our transportation system is failing, we cannot work together as we should or reach our full potential as a province.

Your government has completed the first stage of a comprehensive transportation plan.

It is a vision that opens up the North with major improvements to rural roads, new access to gas and oil fields, and the completion of the new Nisga'a Highway.

The heartlands of our province will be opened up through an integrated rail network that improves service and protects public ownership of the BC Rail lines, beds and rights-of-way.

Improvements to the Kicking Horse Canyon will help open up the Kootenays and the Columbia Valley to the rest of Canada and all of B.C.

New investments in border infrastructure will improve the movement of our goods to our customers. The Island and Coast will be opened up to greater choice, competition and better service through the new BC Ferries Services.

And your government will continue to work to ensure our airports become the regional social and economic engines they should be.

Improvements to transportation are long overdue and starting this year they will be secured for the future through dedicated funding from fuel tax revenue that ensures those investments are made.

Opening Up A Revitalized Forestry Industry

No issue will dominate this Session's legislative agenda like the reforms aimed at revitalizing B.C.'s forest industry.

A number of measures will be taken to open up our forest industry and put it on a sound, sustainable, competitive footing.

This Session, your government will introduce legislation to create a working forestland base. The working forest is meant to secure a working land base for forest companies, forest workers and communities throughout the heartlands of British Columbia.

The government will pass forest reforms to diversify tenure and move towards market-based stumpage that is regionally sensitive and socially responsible. These measures will ensure that British Columbians get top value for every log harvested from their public forests.

More timber will be available for innovative, smaller, local operators through the B.C. Timber Sales Program and also for First Nations.

Fair compensation will be assured for existing tenure holders that recognizes both the benefits and costs of reform.

There will be benefits from the elimination of water bedding, cut controls and appurtenancy requirements that have hurt forest companies' ability to successfully compete.

We will maintain current restrictions on the export of logs from Crown lands. As noted, significant steps will be taken to involve and accommodate First Nations' interests in the development of forest resources.

These measures will not be easy, painless or welcomed by all. Restructuring of this magnitude simply cannot be made without some short-term dislocation. But restructuring is needed now. It cannot wait.

The Coastal industry is in deep trouble and has implored the government to act, despite the attendant hardships and growing pains that will inevitably result in the short-term. To delay further would be to invite devastating consequences and unthinkable permanent job losses.

The changes that must be made are difficult, yet absolutely critical to the Coastal industry's long-term viability and survival.

The Interior forest industry faces other structural pressures, beyond the softwood lumber dispute. The pine beetle infestation threatens communities throughout most of the Interior and the North.

Your government will continue to work with the industry in each region to act in a measured, determined way to bring about the right reforms at the right time for the greatest public good.

The government's primary concern as we move through this generational change in forest policy is the people who count on the forests directly for their livelihoods.

It will work with labour, the federal government and industry representatives to try to mitigate the trauma of change on people's lives and in our heartlands communities.

Over the long term, the government's forest reforms will modernize our forest industry and make it more competitive. Forestry will remain British Columbia's number one industry for many, many years to come.

This year the sun will begin to rise on a new forest industry where forest workers look to the future with confidence and optimism.

Opening Up B.C.'s Heartlands to Economic Growth

Your government's new B.C. Heartlands Economic Strategy will open up new opportunities for economic growth throughout our entire province.

The Ministry of Competition, Science and Enterprise will complete and implement economic development plans across the province, incorporating plans for infrastructure, human capital, and marketing.

The B.C. Heartlands Economic Strategy will open up new partnerships with First Nations, new investments in transportation infrastructure, new opportunities for tourism, sport and recreation from a successful Olympics bid, and a revitalized forestry industry.

Yet more will be done.

No sector of our economy offers more promise for job and wealth creation throughout British Columbia than our energy industry. The new Energy Policy will open up new investments in independent power production and clean, renewable alternative energy throughout B.C.

Coalbed methane has huge potential for the Kootenays, the Central Interior and Vancouver Island. Opportunities for job creation in that new enterprise will be pursued this year with new vigor, supported by new legislation.

Offshore oil and gas exploration holds tremendous promise for communities in the Northwest and on northern Vancouver Island.

By 2010, your government wants to have an offshore oil and gas industry that is up and running, environmentally sound, and booming with job creation.

Tourism is another sector that is critical to the government's B.C. Heartlands Economic Strategy. By 2010, your government wants to see our tourism industry more than double in size.

The government wants to see B.C.'s parks be major magnets for tourism. The new Recreational Stewardship Plan will help make that happen.

But more can be done to leverage the opportunities that will flow from those parks, new investments in transportation, and hosting the 2010 Olympics.

B.C.'s summer and winter resorts are unparalleled in the world. From Kelowna's Big White to Vernon's Silver Star... From Courtenay's Mount Washington to Penticton's Apex... From Sun Peaks in Kamloops, to Eight Peaks and Saddle Mountain near Blue River...

From Canoe near Valemount, to Hudson Bay Mountain near Smithers and Powder King near Chetwynd... From Golden's Kicking Horse to Invermere's Panorama... From Kimberley Alpine Resort and Fernie Alpine Resort to Nelson's White Water and Rossland's Red Mountain, British Columbia's resort potential is unmatched.

There are brand new resort communities on the horizon.

B.C.'s four-season resorts are an enormous economic asset and represent a major opportunity for British Columbians throughout our heartlands.

This year your government is establishing the B.C. Resort Task Force to bring together all the resources and assets of government with First Nations and Resort Communities across B.C.

It will develop new programs to ensure our resort potential is fully met and fully recognized around the world.

The Heartlands Economic Strategy will bring together transportation, energy, forestry, tourism, agriculture, and new technologies to create a powerful economic force for the regions and province as a whole.

This can all happen if we lift our sights higher...if we set new goals for ourselves that oblige us all to reach higher than we ever thought possible.

Opening Up Economic Opportunities for All

Still more opportunities for growth exist in our technology sector.

To help focus government's efforts on expanding our knowledge economy, the government intends to follow the advice of the Premier's Technology Council.

All information technology and e-government related services will be consolidated this year under the Ministry of Management Services.

Your government wants high-speed Internet access in communities throughout the province.

It wants B.C. to be the most computer literate province in Canada.

Other steps will be taken this year to help stimulate investment and job creation in small businesses throughout our province.

The government will launch a new international marketing strategy to aggressively develop new markets and increase market share for B.C. products worldwide.

A national information campaign will market British Columbia's competitive advantages to all Canadians.

Your government will continue to streamline and modernize regulation and encourage business investment and job creation.

It will simplify consumer protection legislation by consolidating seven existing statutes into one.

Changes to the Small Business Venture Capital Act will increase access to seed capital, eliminate red tape, and provide funding opportunities for all regions of the province.

Changes will be introduced to save B.C. businesses time and money.

Companies will soon be able to use a single business number to complete several business processes at one time, from incorporation to registration and data maintenance.

Amendments will also be tabled to the Coal Act, the Mineral Tenure Act, the Mines Act, and the Petroleum and Natural Gas Act to streamline administration and stimulate investment in those sectors.

New legislative measures will open up ICBC, BC Ferries and BC Hydro to independent regulatory oversight that better protects ratepayers, free of political interference.

Legislation will be introduced to open up fair and transparent government procurement practices; modernize the Waste Management Act; improve contaminated sites regulation; streamline and strengthen the Pesticide Control Act; and enhance planning for agriculture and the right to farming.

Opening Up Prosperity and Opportunity

There is much to be done to build a New Era of hope, prosperity and public service for British Columbia.

The challenges at hand will not solve themselves. The opportunities that lie in wait will not be found unless we search for them.

The future we all want for our families, communities, province and country will not materialize by clinging to the status quo.

Real progress always necessitates change... movement... growth. Never has that been truer than it is today.

No region should be left behind as our province moves forward. No segment of our society should be marginalized by a lack of will to make things better.

No sector of our economy should be hamstrung by policies that close off opportunities, turn away investment, or deny job creation.

Your government understands that it too must strive to balance the need for positive change with British Columbians' desire for certainty, stability and manageable reform.

Finding that right balance is always open to debate and constructive criticism. Your government will do its best to listen, learn and act accordingly.

Undeniably, the challenges are great and cannot be surmounted without error. Yet British Columbians know what needs to be done.

This is the year to do it.

This is the year to open up our economy to new investment and job creation by opening up our lands and resources. This is the year to open up our minds to new ways of meeting our common interests, and to open up new partnerships with First Nations, other governments and private enterprise.

This is the year to win the right to host the 2010 Olympics and showcase our entire province to the world. This is the year to revitalize our forest industry and optimize growth in every sector of our economy and in every region.

Your government will open up our province to the free flow of people, goods, services and knowledge. It will modernize and improve crucial public services by putting the interests of patients, students and people in need first.

In short, it will put ideas into action.

Let this be the year that we earn our way forward with bold steps, hard work and a relentless commitment to the next generation. Let this be the year we win the world for British Columbia and Canada.

This truly is our time to shine.

Thank you.

Thursday, February 20, 2003

TEN O’CLOCK A.M.

Prayers by Mr. Kerr.

The Speaker delivered his reserved decision as follows:

Honourable Members:

On Thursday, May 30th, 2002, the Leader of the Opposition rose to present a matter of privilege relating to an alleged disclosure of the contents of a report of the Special Committee to Review the Police Complaint Process, by the Chair of that Committee.

I thank the Honourable Member for her succinct presentation, and the Government House Leader’s contribution of Thursday, February 13th, 2003, on this question.

In her submission, the Leader of the Opposition stated that the article which appeared in the Vancouver Sun on May 28th, 2002, violated her privileges as a Member of the House. The article in question quoted the Chair of the Committee in relation to Committee proceedings.

For his part, the Government House Leader argued that when the Chair spoke to the media, the Committee had not yet considered its report, that there was no report on May 27th and therefore the Member could not possibly have released details of a report that simply did not exist.

I will now carefully outline the facts and chronology of events because of their pertinence to this decision.

After several meetings to review the police complaint process, the Committee held a meeting of significance on Monday, May 27th, 2002. The first part of the meeting was in camera. The Committee then met in public forum.

In the public segment of this meeting, the Chair made a statement that the Police Complaint Commissioner had tendered his resignation to the Speaker, effective that very day. The Chair, continuing in public forum, further explained the details of the terms and conditions respecting the resignation.

An examination of the Committee’s minutes of proceedings and the Hansard report of May 27th, 2002, clearly confirms that the terms and conditions of the resignation were in fact discussed in the public portion of that meeting. Upon adjournment of the Committee, the Chair then proceeded to share exactly the same information with the media outside the committee room.

These facts, specifically the resignation and its terms and conditions, were then reported in the May 28th Vancouver Sun article submitted by the Leader of the Opposition.

On May 30th, 2002, the Special Committee to Review the Police Complaint Process presented its report to the House, a report that contained no additional information other than that which had been made public at the Committee meeting earlier in the week. Again, the report strictly addressed the resignation and its terms and conditions.

I have carefully examined the material presented by the Leader of the Opposition in her submission which included the Committee's report to the House. A report to the House, by extension, is comprised of and is complemented by the corresponding minutes of proceedings and the Hansard report of all the committee meetings. It appears to me that the information, which the Chair disclosed to the media, was not information relating to decisions and recommendations arising out of in camera proceedings.

The Chair's information to the media related to matters and only matters that had been made public by the Chair when the Committee was meeting in public forum.

This was all in the public domain well before the Committee tabled its report to the House on May 30th. On the facts, I cannot find that there was a premature publication of confidential or in camera committee material.

On the question before the House today, I must rule that the matter raised by the honourable the Leader of the Opposition does not constitute a prima facie matter of privilege.

The Chair notes that premature disclosure of the contents of a report to the House, before tabling in the House, is a potential breach of the privileges of this House and of its Members, a situation that the Chair considers extremely serious. May's 19th edition, at page 146 states:

“By the ancient custom of Parliament, no act done by any committee should be divulged before the same be reported to the House ... Where the public are admitted, this rule is usually not enforced.”

In this instance the Committee had made a public statement on the matter at its public meeting, and the statement was not a Committee proceeding “conducted with closed doors”. (May, 19th edition, at p. 146.)

I would, nevertheless, remind the House that when a committee is mandated to undertake a certain task, the committee usually presents a report to the House at the conclusion of its work. Committee reports should be presented to the House before public release. The practice of discussing the contents of reports to the House in public session should be discouraged as the Committee has a duty to report its findings first and foremost to the House.

CLAUDE RICHMOND, Speaker

The Hon. G. Bruce made representations.

The Speaker declared a short recess.

The Speaker delivered his reserved decision as follows:

Honourable Members:

The question before me is whether under Standing Order 81 an urgent or extraordinary occasion exists wherein Bill 21 intituled University of British Columbia Services Continuation Act may be advanced through more than one stage in one day. I have examined the Bill and listened to the arguments which were ably presented by both sides of the House.

The Bill deals with the labour situation at one institution only, namely, University of British Columbia. It is limited in effect to the period from the present to the end of the month, namely 19 days, at which time it expires. The Government House Leader states that student exams are scheduled to commence in 20 days and that a strike will have a direct impact on the academic year of a large number of students.

In their arguments both House Leaders dealt with Speaker Barnes' ruling of April 26, 1996, wherein he ruled that Standing Order 81 would not be applied where a Bill was too broad in scope. The Bill in that case, Education and Health Collective Bargaining Assistance Act, extended beyond the scope of a labour dispute involving the Surrey school district.

The Opposition House Leader argued that this Bill is too broad and in particular that the definition of "Trade Union" in section 1 allows the Government to designate a union by regulation. It is my view that the definition of "Trade Union" must be read in light of the definition of "Employer" in section 1, which is limited to the University of British Columbia.

It is my view that the limitation of the scope and duration of the Bill at hand distinguish it from the Bill considered by Speaker Barnes.

I am also of the view that the actions with which the Bill is concerned will have an immediate and detrimental effect on the academic year of a large number of students.

Accordingly, I am of the view that the case has been made out for the application of Standing Order 81 so that Bill 21 may advance through all stages.

The Speaker delivered his reserved decision as follows:

Honourable Members:

Earlier this day, the Leader of the Opposition sought to move adjournment of the House to discuss a matter of urgent public importance under Standing Order 35, namely “A call for the halting of hostilities in Iraq” and “Endorsement of the Resolution adopted by the City of New York, March 12/03, regarding substantiation of all attempts to disarm Saddam Hussein in accordance with United Nations Resolutions.”

I note the Honourable Member followed the procedures outlined in Standing Order 35 in making her application and thank her for the courtesy of having given the Chair advance notice.

The Government House Leader commented that there exists a number of opportunities for the House to debate the matter raised.

The Chair has considered the matter in light of representations made.

There is no doubt that the Chair recognizes the seriousness of the events occurring in Iraq. Such terrible events conjure up strong feelings and emotions on both sides of the debate. War in any theater is always a matter of great concern generating a sense of urgency.

In dealing with applications under Standing Order 35, the Chair must consider the urgency and public importance of the matters but paramount to this is the urgency of debate.

The words urgent and public importance as stated in Standing Order 35 suggest a sudden and unexpected occurrence — hence the presence of the essential element of suddenness.

The unfortunate events that came to a head last week in Iraq had in fact been evolving over a period of months and had been the subject of widespread debate. Hence the matter raised under Standing Order 35 is substantially the same as that which has been the subject of public debate for months. The matter has been on-going for some time, culminating in hostilities in Iraq.

The on-going nature of the matter raised by the Member has the effect of taking the matters outside the scope of Standing Order 35.

The Chair is also satisfied that there does exist ordinary parliamentary opportunities for raising and debating this matter.

Additionally, while the matter generates global interest and concern, it is clearly not a matter involving the administrative responsibilities of any Ministry of the Province of British Columbia but rather falls within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Government of Canada.

Jurisdictional issues precluding Standing Order 35 were noted in Speaker Barnes’ decision of May 24, 1994. It is noted that matters in the House that have proceeded to debate under Standing Order 35 were all under the jurisdictional umbrella of the Province of British Columbia.

For these reasons, the Member’s application does not qualify under Standing Order 35.

CLAUDE RICHMOND, Speaker

And then the House adjourned at 8.46 p.m.

NAYS—1

MacPhail

The House recessed until 9.32 p.m.

The Speaker delivered his reserved decision as follows:

Honourable Members:

Earlier today the Leader of the Opposition sought to raise a matter of Privilege in alleging that the Minister of Forests “has, by sponsoring, defending in debate and voting in favour of Bill 28, sought to derive a financial benefit”, and was thereby in contempt of the House. The Member has followed all the rules applicable to raising a matter of privilege.

Bill 28, the Forestry Revitalization Act, enacts, as a matter of state policy, a fundamental change in forestry tenures and provides for a compensation fund which could have the effect of a financial penalty to the Minister of Forests under section 5 (1) of the Balanced Budget and Ministerial Accountability Act. Section 11 of Bill 28 creates an exemption from the penalty for the 2002-2003 fiscal year.

In her argument she quoted section 2 of the Members’ Conflict of Interest Act which reads in part as follows:

“2 (1) For the purposes of this Act, a member has a conflict of interest when the member exercises an official power or performs an official duty or function in the execution of his or her office and at the same time knows that in the performance of the duty or function or in the exercise of the power there is the opportunity to further his or her private interest.”

Section 2, however, must be read in light of the definition of “Private Interest” in section 1 of that Act, which clearly exempts “the remuneration and benefits of a member of the Legislative Assembly” from the definition.

While Standing Order 18 was not specifically mentioned, it is modelled on the British practice to which the Member alluded. Standing Order 18 reads as follows:

Member having pecuniary interest not to vote.

18. No Member is entitled to vote upon any question in which he or she has a direct pecuniary interest, and the vote of any Member so interested shall be disallowed.

Numerous Speakers’ decisions have dealt with the issues raised in Standing Order 18 as enumerated in MacMinn’s Parliamentary Practice in British Columbia, 3rd ed., beginning at p. 27. A review of those decisions and the 20th ed. of Erskine May’s Parliamentary Practice at p. 412 indicates that matters of state policy or involving salaries and benefits of Members are exempt from the rule. Examples given include Members’ salaries, pensions and a vote against a specific reduction in a Minister’s salary.

On the question of the application of the rule to advocacy the following passage from Parliament, Functions and Procedures by J. A. G. Griffith and Michael Ryle makes it clear that the rule does not apply to public bills, being applicable only to Private Bills.

“On July 17, 1811 Mr. Speaker Abbot ruled: “No member who has a direct pecuniary interest in a question shall be allowed to vote upon it” and this was understood then to be an ancient practice. But he distinguished an interest “in common with the rest of His Majesty’s subjects or on a matter of state policy”; the vote of a member would not be disallowed solely because of such interests and this is the governing doctrine today. In practice members may vote on all business before the House except private legislation where they have a direct pecuniary interest. So in 1983, the Speaker ruled that members who were solicitors might vote on the Home Buyers Bill (intended to remove their exclusive rights on conveyancing) as the bill was on a matter of public policy. But on a private bill to regulate Lloyds, members of that corporation were advised not to vote.”

The Member also quoted from the Report of the Select Standing Committee on the Conduct of a Member, House of Commons, 18th December 1940. That report, however, dealt with an allegation that a Member received a benefit from an outside party in exchange for advocating a course of action through political speeches and pressure on Ministers and officials. That is clearly not the case at hand.

In summary, the authorities have on numerous occasions stated that where a matter of general or public policy is at the heart of a measure, personal and pecuniary interest is overridden.

The Minister, in presenting, debating and voting on Bill 28 is not in breach of any rule of this House or the precedents to which I have referred. Accordingly I find that no prima facie case of breach of privilege or contempt has been made out.

CLAUDE RICHMOND, Speaker

PUBLIC WRITTEN QUESTIONS

2 Gary Coons, President, Prince Rupert District Teachers' Union, asked the Hon. the Minister of Finance, regarding the Minister's responsibility for taxation, the following question:—

Generally speaking, all revenue collected from school taxes goes into the education system. Will the $187 million collected from the 3 year 2.5% increase go into the public education system?

The Hon. G. Collins replied as follows:

Thank you for your question regarding provincial tax policy.

As the Minister responsible for tax policy, I am pleased to respond that all provincial school tax revenue will continue to finance Kindergarten to Grade 12 education. In Budget 2003, the province announced a tax rate policy which will allow the province to maintain the provincial school tax as an important component of education financing.

3 Jim Abram, Chair, Regional District of Comox-Strathcona, asked the Hon. the Minister of Sustainable Resource Management, regarding the Minister's responsibility for Land and Water BC Inc., the following question:—

As the Minister responsible for Land and Water BC Inc., why have you allowed an agreement to sell the Lannan Crown Forest to a private company to be signed without consulting local government, First Nations or local community groups?

The Hon. S. Hagen replied as follows:

Thank you for your Public Written Question submitted to the Speaker.

I have been informed by Land and Water BC Inc. (LWBC) that they consulted with the City of Courtenay commencing in the spring of 2002 and with the Comox-Strathcona Regional District (CSRD) commencing in the fall of 2002. The CSRD had been advised in the spring of 2002 that LWBC was reviewing options for the 16-hectare Lannan Road property

Where public consultation processes already exist (such as public rezoning hearings) LWBC would prefer to use such opportunities.

LWBC reviewed available information about aboriginal rights and title and treaty concerns, in accordance with established provincial practices, as part of its decision to make the Crown land available to stimulate employment and investment in the Comox Valley.

PUBLIC WRITTEN QUESTIONS

Date answered: October 20, 2003

8 Gary Coons, President, Prince Rupert District Teachers' Union, asked the Hon. the Minister of Education, regarding the Minister's responsibility for education spending, the following question:—

How much money was spent on production and ad buy for full page education ads of the spring and summer of 2003?

The Hon. C. Clark replied as follows:

Thank you for your question regarding education ads.

This has been an important year for education in British Columbia. The education system is changing and our government is committed to keeping the public well informed about these changes, and these advertisements provide British Columbians with valuable information.

We have an open and transparent budgeting process for government expenditures. The advertising budget for government is $19.5 million for fiscal year 2003/04, which is over $3 million less than the advertising budget found in the previous government's last budget. The total cost of the advertisements will be communicated when government reports all spending at the end of the fiscal year.

Government has also banned all non-essential advertising four months prior to an election. We believe that government advertising expenditures should be focused on providing the facts, not propaganda, around important government initiatives to the public.

9 Gary Coons, President, Prince Rupert District Teachers' Union, asked the Hon. the Minister of Health Services, regarding the Minister's responsibility for health care, the following question:—

With respect to the full page health ads placed by the government since October 28, 2002, how much was spent for ad production and total ad buy?

The Hon. C. Hansen replied as follows:

Thank you for your question regarding the costs of advertisements.

We have increased the Health budget by $2 billion dollars over the past three years to a total of $10.7 billion. None of the budget of the Ministry of Health Services went towards the advertisements. They are funded from the budget of the Public Affairs Bureau.

The advertising budget for the entire government is $19.5 million for fiscal year 2003/04, which is $3 million less than the previous government's last budget. The total cost of advertisements will be finalized when government reports all spending at the end of the fiscal year. Also note that the Government has banned all non-essential advertising four months prior to an election.

PUBLIC WRITTEN QUESTIONS

Date answered: October 23, 2003

10 Adriane Carr, Leader, Green Party of British Columbia, asked the Hon. the Minister of Health Services, regarding the Minister's responsibility for rural health services the following question:—

On September 21, a young mother's life was saved in the Nelson Hospital by an emergency operation to remove her ruptured spleen. It was lucky that the surgeons she needed were in Nelson, as her vital signs were failing and she would not have made it to Trail where surgical services are now centralized for the entire Kootenay Boundary area. Will you, Mr. Minister, take this patient's close call as a warning and move quickly to restore Nelson's general surgery, surgeons and intensive care unit to prevent needless deaths?

The Hon. C. Hansen replied as follows:

Thank you for your question regarding the issue of health care redesign in the Kootenay area.

Patients in the Kootenay Boundary area receive excellent care and specialty services, when and where they need it. Our government has developed standards for access to care; this includes access to emergency room services within one hour, acute care within two hours and specialty services within four hours. Patients in the Nelson area clearly fall within these standards of access to care. More detail on these standards can be found on our web site at <http://www.health.gov.bc.ca>. As a direct result of this redesign, we now have more effective care for all patients and all residents who live in the Kootenay-Boundary area. We have been able to attract an additional five specialists into the region, resulting in better care for residents and less burnout for physicians.

A medical quality care committee has reviewed the particular case you refer to. The review has determined that if the patient had been transferred to the regional hospital as originally planned, she would have received the care she needed in Trail, as there was a team on standby ready to receive the patient.

Bill introduced and read a first time.

Bill Ordered to be placed on the Orders of the Day for second reading at the next sitting after today.

Order called for “Members’ Statements.”

Order called for “Oral Questions by Members.”

The Speaker delivered his reserved decision as follows:

Honourable Members:

During the afternoon sitting on Monday, the Leader of the Opposition rose on a point of order relating to a ministerial statement made by the Government House Leader on Thursday, October 23rd, immediately following Question Period. Essentially, the Member’s objection was that she had not received an advance copy of the ministerial statement and therefore was not in a position to make a timely and appropriate response.

The Government House Leader, in his response to the point of order, stated that while governments try to provide advance notice of ministerial statements to the Chair and the Opposition, such advance notice is not always possible and in any event there is no statutory or other obligation imposing this practice.

The Government House Leader further stated that the information provided to the House was in fact not provided to him until the end of the Question Period, and in any event the Leader of the Opposition was not in the House at the time. Had she been in the House at the time and requested a right of reply, it would have been granted.

The timing of and content of ministerial statements has been thoroughly examined in the earlier decisions of the House and I refer Honourable Members to two decisions recorded in the Journals of the House: one on March 20, 1987, at page 26, and another on April 27, 1999, at page 231. I commend these decisions to Members who wish to examine the matter further.

The Chair has examined the contents of the ministerial statement and considered the circumstances under which it was made and can find no breach of order. Indeed, the ministerial statement dealt with the matter which had just been canvassed in Question Period, and the Chair feels that the ability of the House to respond promptly to matters of concern should be encouraged.

Touching briefly on the matter of replies to ministerial statements, this House has on occasion permitted a deferred reply to a ministerial statement, but clearly each case must be decided on its individual merit.

The Chair encourages notice be given wherever possible but neither the rules of this House nor its precedents indicate that such notice is mandatory.

CLAUDE RICHMOND, Speaker

The Speaker made a statement relating to Oral Question Period, and observance of the rules set forth in Standing Order 47A.

By leave, Bill (No. Pr 406) intituled Ver-Tel Communications Ltd. (Corporate Restoration) Act, 2003 was read a second time, and by leave, committed, reported complete without amendment, and by leave, read a third time and passed.

By leave, Bill (No. Pr 407) intituled Buron Construction Ltd. (Corporate Restoration) Act, 2003 was read a second time, and by leave, committed, reported complete without amendment, and by leave, read a third time and passed.

PUBLIC WRITTEN QUESTIONS

Date answered: October 29, 2003

11 Adriane Carr, Leader, Green Party of British Columbia, asked the Hon. the Minister of Sustainable Resource Management, regarding the Minister's responsibility for Land Use and Coast Planning — Working Forest Initiative, the following question:—

Will the Working Forest Initiative, enabled by Bill 46, which is intended to give the timber industry certainty, obstruct new park creation or land settlements with First Nations, or increase compensation to logging companies, or facilitate privatizing our public lands? Since it is unclear what certainty the Working Forest Initiative provides, and it has garnered massive public opposition — with 97 percent of people responding to your consultation opposed — will you withdraw Bill 46?

The Hon. S. Hagen replied as follows:

Overview

The Land Amendment Act, 2003, (Bill 46), provides the legislative authority to implement the New Era commitment that is intended to “establish a working forest landbase, to provide greater stability for working families and to enhance long-term forestry management and planning”. As such, it is intended to give certainty to the broad range of forest resource sectors, as well as communities and workers that depend on the forest landbase, not just the “timber industry”. This certainty is essential for continued economic investments and development for this province's landbase resource sectors such as tourism, agriculture, and mining, as well as timber. Further, Bill 46 reflects the government's commitment to a sustainable environment.

Creation of new parks

Bill 46 does not prevent the creation of new parks since Cabinet can still decide to establish a new park. To do so, Cabinet would be required to delete the land from the “Working Forest” prior to creating the land as a new park. In this regard, while it is important to remember that this province has largely completed its protected areas system over the last decade and now it is time to increase certainty for the economy, this government recognizes that some new parks and protected areas will likely be recommended as a result of the remaining LRMP processes underway, particularly on the central and north coast and Haida Gwaii (Queen Charlotte Islands) and therefore Cabinet may have to make a decision on whether or not to accept such a recommendation. Further, I fully support our New Era commitment . . . which is “Ensure Cabinet decisions on any new parks are made in public.”

First Nations' land settlements

Bill 46 will not limit or prevent land settlements with First Nations as a result of a treaty negotiation decision. And the government will have to consult and where appropriate accommodate First Nation interests.

Increased compensation to logging companies

It is the opinion of the government, supported by legal opinion from lawyers with the Ministry of Attorney General, that Bill 46 will not increase compensation to logging companies. The intent of any “Working Forest” designation is to signal the government’s strategic commitment to making Crown forest land available over the long-term for forest management activities. But it is clearly recognized that this will still be within the current legislative framework of the Forest Act, Forest Practices Code of British Columbia Act and the Forest and Range Practices Act and within the concept of integrated forest management for the broad range of forest resources and sectors.

Facilitate privatizing public lands

Bill 46 will not facilitate the privatization of public Crown lands. In particular, the government recognizes that the public is concerned about the selling off of Crown forest land to the forest industry and therefore it has explicitly retained Section 23 of the Land Act to ensure that the selling of Crown land for forestry purposes remains illegal. In addition, the intent of Bill 46 will establish that Crown forest land is intended for long-term forest management activities and therefore any proposed disposition of land for purposes other than forestry must meet a clear “highest and best use” test before it can be sold.

Withdrawal of Bill 46

The government has carefully considered the public responses that have come forward during the public review period. In by far the majority of cases, it is clear that the public comment was predicated on a misreading or misunderstanding of the intent of Bill 46 and the “Working Forest” Initiative. Therefore, government has clarified the intent of this initiative where necessary, as is evidenced by this written response to the House, and will continue moving forward with Bill 46 and its implementation.

PUBLIC WRITTEN QUESTIONS

Date answered: November 17, 2003

13 Adriane Carr, Leader, Green Party of British Columbia, asked the Hon. the Minister of State for Community Charter, regarding the Minister's Responsibility for the 2010 Winter Olympic Games, the following question:—

The government of BC is now committed to spending substantial funds on the 2010 Olympic Games. Will the government commit to providing a complete public disclosure of the financial assets of all members of the Vancouver Organizing Committee for the Games, the 2010 Winter Olympics Bid, City contract, and the financial records of the 2010 Bid Corporation?

The Hon. T. Nebbeling replied as follows:

Let me begin by stating that the process throughout the Bid has been very transparent, and we expect that the Vancouver Organizing Committee for the 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Games ("OCOG") will continue to be transparent as we move forward.

With respect to the financial affairs of the Vancouver 2010 Bid Corporation ("Bid Corporation"), information will be documented and audited by the end of this year. At that time, the Bid Corporation is required to provide a detailed financial report to the International Olympic Committee ("IOC"). The audited financial results will be made available to the public once they have been shared with the Member Partners and the IOC.

Let me emphasize that the provincial government will continue to provide a high level of financial transparency to the public in all its contracts and dealings relating to the 2010 Winter Games. The Province is subject to Freedom of Information rules under the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act, one of the most stringent such Acts in the country.

In addition, the Auditor General is automatically the auditor of the financial statements of provincial government-reporting entities, all ministries, offices administered by officers of the Legislature and the Conflict of Interest Commissioner, and any fund or appropriation that is part of the consolidated revenue fund.

Legislation allows the Auditor General to "follow the money". He may audit an individual or organization where government, a government organization or trust fund has provided a grant, transfer, advance, loan, a guarantee or an indemnity to that individual or organization.

In his report, "Review of Estimates related to Vancouver's bid to stage the 2010 Winter Games" released Jan. 16, 2003, the Auditor General stated the methodology of estimating costs and revenues of the games is sound and reasonable.

In our commitment to show openness and transparency, the Province and the Bid Corporation invited the Auditor General to look at the methodology. We wanted independent eyes to go over the bid to confirm the methodology was reasonable and sound. An independent economic study shows that expanding the Vancouver Trade and Convention Centre, combined with hosting the Games could: generate over $10 billion in economic activity, create over 200,000 person years of employment, and bring in $2.5 billion in tax revenue.

British Columbia is one of the signatories to the Multi Party Agreement, an agreement that includes commitments around disclosure of financial information and reporting by the OCOG.

The OCOG will be required to provide to signatories of the Multi Party Agreement quarterly updates of its Business Plan with a financial statement including operating expenses statements, revenue statements, cash flow statements and balance sheets for the OCOG's activities for that quarter.

The OCOG will provide the signatories to the Multi Party Agreement with audited financial statements of the OCOG for each fiscal year of the OCOG, within 90 days of the fiscal year end. Final audited financial statements will be provided to the Parties within 180 days of the end of the Games. While it is a decision yet to be made by the whole of the Board of Directors of the OCOG, the Province will strongly recommend that the OCOG follow the Bid Corporation's practice of making its audited financial statement available to the public.

The Province will Chair the OCOG's Audit and Finance Committee, and has the right to approve the business plan for the Games, including the Budget and any material amendments to the Budget (amendments greater than $5 million).

The Speaker made the following statement:

Honourable Members:

I wish to comment to the House on matters that occurred at the opening of the afternoon session relating to the introduction of a Message Bill and during Question Period. I have reviewed the Hansard transcripts and replayed the event through the live web cast in order to ensure accuracy of my observations.

Firstly, when the Speaker is on his feet attempting to read the Message from the Lieutenant Governor or the Administrator, irrespective of the Member's opinion on the Message itself, it is axiomatic that the Message is listened to with courtesy and without interruption. It is extraordinary when the Speaker must call for order during this proceeding, but unfortunately he had to earlier today. During the two minute explanation of the Bill that is permitted on first reading, inappropriate interjections not only continued, but the tape indicates they accelerated.

During Question Period, the Opposition was, as always, afforded the courtesy of the first question, but it became apparent during the attempts to answer, that the Opposition was determined to continue with their interruptions. A supplementary question was permitted to the Opposition — again during the attempt to answer, interruptions became more persistent making it difficult, if not impossible, for either the Members or the Chair to hear the answers.

As has been the practice in the past, and faced with what appeared to the Chair to be concerted effort to interrupt answers to the questions posed, the Opposition was denied the normal second supplementary.

The Chair wishes to observe that this process is neither new, nor should it come as any surprise to any Member of this House. The Members involved are both experienced Members and know the rules.

The Chair is charged with the responsibility of seeing that the legislature runs in accordance with the Standing Orders as developed by the Members.

The Chair also understands that passion and tempers may be inflamed from time to time during debate. It is the Chair's responsibility to see that Parliament is able to do its work.

On a more serious vein, the replaying of the proceedings around Question Period reveals that both Members of the Opposition levelled a charge that the Chair was not conducting the proceedings with impartiality and, indeed, the word "partisan" was directed at the Chair. Such behaviour will not be tolerated in this House and brings the institution into disrepute.

The Members with their persistent interruptions and lack of respect for this Assembly, brought the situation on themselves, but even the newest Member of this House understands that an attack on the impartiality of the Chair, is totally unacceptable — and these are experienced Members.

Under normal parliamentary rules, an apology is given by the offending Members for such an attack — in this instance the Chair will leave it to the judgment and conscience of the Members involved.

Finally, the Chair does not intend to engage in a debate in the media with the Members involved in today's proceedings or any other Member. Let it be clearly understood that any repeat of today's performance will not be tolerated.

In issuing this admonition, the Chair is also aware that the Government benches are not without fault and they must accept some responsibility for contributing to the general disorder that took place this afternoon.

CLAUDE RICHMOND, Speaker

And then the House adjourned at 5.56 p.m.

PUBLIC WRITTEN QUESTIONS

Date answered: November 25, 2003

15 Donald Linge, Councillor, Township of Esquimalt, asked the Hon. the Minister of Sustainable Resource Management, regarding the Minister's responsibility for the Victoria Land Title Office, the following question:—

Since the Victoria Land Title Office is closing on April 1, 2004, due to the introduction of electronic filing, why is the equally busy Kamloops Land Title Office remaining open indefinitely?

The Hon. S. Hagen replied as follows:

I am pleased to answer your publicly written question pertaining to the Land Titles Office.

It should be clarified that only the front counter service at the Victoria Land Titles Office is closing, not the office itself. These changes will not happen until the electronic filing services are in place, which ensures all British Columbians have equal access to land titles services. The decision to preserve the front counter service in Kamloops was based on the government's Heartlands Economic Strategy to preserve jobs in support of economic development for interior communities. I note too, that New Westminster is the centre of greatest demand and once combined with the Victoria records, will account for 80% of land title services and Kamloops will handle 20%.

It is important to point out that Victoria will continue to manage the registry of Crown Land which represents more than 90 per cent of land in the province.

PUBLIC WRITTEN QUESTION

Date answered: December 2, 2003

17 Scott Doherty, 1st Vice-President, Communications, Energy and Paperworkers Union, Local 1123, asked the Hon. the Minister of Education, regarding the Minister's responsibility for Education, the following question:—

How many more schools have to be closed in Campbell River and the North Island before this government realizes that their funding is insufficient and detrimental to the quality of education for our children?

The Hon. C. Clark replied as follows:

I am pleased to answer this publicly written question regarding education funding in Campbell River and the North Island.

I want to make it clear that our government has maintained education funding at $4.8 billion dollars even though the number of students has declined. Over the next two years, funding for schools will increase by $100 million.

This year, in addition to their basic allocation, school boards received a $43 per student one-time supplement. As well, boards with more than a one per cent drop in enrolment will share $12 million to reduce the effects of declining enrolment.

All but 10 of the province's 60 school districts are experiencing a declining enrolment; Campbell River and Vancouver Island North are no exception. Over the past three years Vancouver Island North has had a decline of 390 students; Campbell River has 509 fewer students.

Declining enrollment affects districts because funding is allocated on a per student basis. Local school boards are responsible for deciding how best to use funds within their district. School closures are never easy and provide many challenges to those affected but it doesn't make sense to fund empty classrooms.
